

Former places of worship in the Diocese of Southwark

HATCHAM, ST JAMES

Ref: HAT01

Status	converted or used for purposes other than worship
Borough	Lewisham
Present parish	HATCHAM, ST JAMES
Built	1854
Build architect	W L B Granville

Further information	The parish was created in 1845 from Deptford, St Paul. The church was built from 1849 (consecrated 17/10/1854) on a site bought from the governors of Christ's Hospital, replacing a temporary church of 1846. "... modern Pointed ... transepts with both eastern and western aisles (later extended by apses) ... F Rogers also (later) erected a screen, a Lady chapel altar, and several windows. ... A new vestry was built in 1897, designed by W. Gilbee Scott. The inside has been redecorated, and there is post-War glass by Francis H. Spear." (from 'Parish Churches of London', Basil F L Clarke, Batsford, 1966) It was declared redundant in 1981 and leased initially to Goldsmiths College, later to Laban Dance Studio. In 2005 it was leased for use as a training centre to the London Development Agency. The present church is adjacent and dates from the 1960's. Part of the churchyard is held by the Diocesan Board of Finance.
