Further information

A large church - brick with a slate roof - with a seating capacity of 450. There was a single bell. The 1973 quinquennial report on a Diocesan file gives a full description. It was closed in 1974 and formally declared redundant and demolished in 1979.

Part of the site was sold and a new church built on the remainder in 1980 as Wandsworth, St Stephen. The parish seems to have become officially known by this name before then, but the old name of East Putney is still sometimes used locally.
