Borough	Lambeth
Present parish	GIPSY HILL, CHRIST CHURCH
Built	1867
Build architect	John Giles
Further information	"A large ragstone church, with slated roofs, French thirteenth-century in style, with polished granite pillars and foliated capitals. The church was consecrated on 7 June 1867. The tower, at the north-east, was completed in 1889, and vestry and porch were added in the same year." (from 'Parish Churches of London', Basil F L Clarke, Batsford, 1966) A fire in 1982 destroyed most of the building. Only the tower (containing a single chimed bell and a set of 8 tubular chimes) remains, which is a listed building and has been converted for residential use. A new church was built on part of the site in 1987 and the remainder was leased for residential development in 1990 (the freehold was sold in 1999). A full history is available on the parish website.
